- 1 Aitchison, N. (1994). Armagh and the Royal Centres in Early Medieval Ireland. Monuments, Cosmology, and the Past. Woodbridge. 941.66
I have written a review of this book in Irish Historical Studies. It is an interesting view of the material and is thought-provoking. But there are wild leaps of the imagination and much speculation stretches the evidence. Aitchison, Armagh, royal centres, monuments, cosmology
- 2 Anderson, A. O. and Anderson, M. O., editors (1991). Adomnán's Life of Columba. Oxford: [Thomas Nelson and Sons Ltd., Edinburgh and London 1961] revised by Marjorie Ogilvie Anderson, Clarendon Press. 282
This is an edition and translation of the earliest 'life' of St Colum Cille. This 'life' is one of the most important for history and archaeology. It must be read. Anderson, Columba, Colum Cille, Adamnán, hagiography, hagiographer, saints' lives
- 3 Bammesberger, A. and Wollmann, A., editors (1990). Britain 400–600: Language and History. Heidelberg. 420.9
An important collection of essays. providing a context for the Christianisation of Early Ireland. Bammesberger, Wollmann, Britain, language, Early Christian Ireland
- 4 Bhreathnach, E. (1993). Tara: The literary and historical perspective. Dublin: Royal Irish Academy / Discovery Programme. Store LD95.8930
The material gathered here will provide the basis for a deeper understanding of the role of Tara in the biography of Patrick. What was its symbolical significance for seventh-century Churchmen? Why should they be concerned with such a pagan site? Bhreathnach, Tara, literature
- 5 Bhreathnach, E. (1995). Introduction. In Tara. A Select Bibliography, chapter 1. Dublin: Royal Irish Academy / Discovery Programme. 941.5/DIS
The introduction to this Select Bibliography provides a useful summary and guide to the sources referring to Tara. In particular pp 21–26 extract and comment on the references in the hagiography. Bhreathnach, Tara, bibliography, hagiography
- 6 Bhreathnach, E. and Newman, C. (1995). Tara. Dublin: Stationery Office. W77
A beautifully illustrated guide to Tara. Well worth buying. Bhreathnach, Newman, Tara

- 7 Bieler, L. (1949). The Life and Legend of St Patrick: Problems of Modern Scholarship. Dublin. 274.15/S
Although dated, Professor Bieler's work was fundamental in furthering Patrician studies during the middle decades of the last century. Bieler, Patrick, legends, Muirchú, Tírechán, hagiography, saints lives
- 8 Bieler, L. (1966). Ireland, Harbinger of the Middle Ages. London. 274.15
This is a great work of cultural history of Early Ireland. It is rich in textual and visual material. It is a joy to read. It should be read. Bieler, harbinger, Middle Ages, Early Christian Ireland
- 9 Bieler, L. (1987a). The Celtic hagiographer. In Bieler, 1987b, chapter X. 189 BIE
A short but fundamentally important article on the origins of hagiography in Early Ireland. Bieler, Celtic hagiographer, Latin, hagiography, hagiographer
- 10 Bieler, L. (1987b). Ireland and the Culture of Early Medieval Europe. Edited by Richard Sharpe. London: Variorum Reprints. 189 BIE
A collection of the important contributions of Bieler to the history of our early Church history. Bieler, culture, Ireland and Europe
